Reciprocity Measure by New York
Senator Renders Agreement Nuga-

ment Providing for Government Control of Senatorial Elections.

Washington, June 22.—James H. Mann of Illinois, the minority leader, made an attack on the Root amendment which, while couched in temperate language, aroused the ire of Representative Malby of New York, who asked permission to print a reply in the record. Mr. Mann insisted that the adoption of the Root amendment would kill the reciprocity agreement so far as it applies to pulp and paper and wood pulp. He was supported by Republicans and Democrats when he made this observation. "If the reciprocity bill comes back to the house with such an amendment to the wood pulp and paper provisions, which is absolutely destructive of its purpose and which renders its intent entirely ineffective, I trust that it will meet with instant and decisive disapproval here."

Mr. Mann warned the papermakers that if they wanted "to cut off their supply of Canadian wood pulp and transfer the papermaking industry to Canada, all they need to do was to keep on urging the Root amendment and they will probably be accommodated by a simple, plain reciprocity on paper between the United States and Canada without any reference to pulp wood or our obtaining pulp wood from Canada."

Washington, June 22.—The house of representatives refused to concur in the Bristow amendment to the resolution providing for the direct election of senators by popular vote.

Afraid of Ghosts

Many people are afraid of ghosts. Few people are afraid of germs. Yet the ghost is a thing and the germ is a fact. If the germ could be imagined to a size equal to its terror it would appear more terrible than any ghostly apparition. Germs can't be avoided. They are in the air we breathe, the water we drink.

The germ can only prosper when the condition of the system gives it free scope to establish itself and develop. When there is a deficiency of vital force, hunger, restlessness, a swollen cheek, a hollow eye, when the appetite is poor and the sleep is broken, it is time to find a medicine to fortify the body against all germs by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It increases the vital power, cleanses the system of clogging impurities, enriches the blood, puts the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition in working condition, so that the germ finds no weak or tainted spot in which to breed. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whiskey or habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients are printed on its outside wrapper. It is not a secret medicine but a medicine of known composition with a record of 40 years of cures. Accept no substitute—there is nothing "just as good." Ask your neighbor.

LONDON'S GREAT DAY

Marvelous Scene Enacted In Westminster Abbey.

THEIR MAJESTIES CHEERED

Hundreds of Thousands Celebrated the Imposing Event.

London, June 22.—King George was today crowned amid scenes that surpassed any that have marked previous coronations. The program adhered strictly to the arrangements.

In anticipation of the day's event large crowds were early in the streets, along the Strand and around Westminster abbey. Many remained up all night in the hope of getting a good vantage point from which to see the regal procession. Festoons, flags and streamers were everywhere, and the coronation route was lavishly decorated with masses of color. Stand speculators did a thriving business.

The abbey began to fill several hours before the time set for the coronation service. As the distinguished personages were conducted to their allotted seats the opera glasses in the gallery critically examined the gowns and jewels. Such a display of jewels never before was seen at a court ceremony.

The procession of their majesties in their coach from Buckingham palace, the home of Britain's king and queen, to Westminster abbey, where the coronation service took place, was without special incident.

The service in the abbey began with the reconsecration of the regalia. As the king and queen came in sight the archbishop of Canterbury took his seat in front of the coronation chair. The queen passed to the left of the throne and to her chair. Then the king appeared, bowed to the queen as he passed her and knelt in prayer before his chair in front of the throne.

King and Queen Kneel.
The king stood while the archbishop read the recognition, or election, beginning, "Sir, I here present unto you King George, the undoubted king of this realm." etc. The king and queen knelt while the archbishop said the communion service, and the singing of the Creed followed.

Next came the administration of the oath. The archbishop, standing before the king's chair, asked, "Sir, is your majesty willing to take the oath?" The king answered, "I am willing," and signed the oath.

After the archbishop's anointing prayer the sword, armillae and all were delivered to the king, according to the program. The choir started "God Save the King" and this was the signal which started bell ringing, gun firing and shouting throughout the city's streets.

The Bible having been presented, the king knelt to receive the benediction. He then walked to the great throne, where the archbishop, Prince of Wales and nobles knelt and paid homage.

The queen's crowning was brief and simple. She left her chair and proceeded to the altar steps, where she was quickly crowned by the archbishop of York. She was then led to the throne beside that in which the king sat. She bowed to him, and both walked to the altar and received the communion.

The service was completed with the singing of the "Te Deum."

parture of their majesties from the abbey. The procession returned to the palace by a more circuitous route than that taken in going to the abbey in order to afford a view to additional hundreds of thousands.

Jubilant Unrestrained.
As the king and queen rode through the streets jubilation was unrestrained, and the crowds kept perching the streets for hours afterward.

Both the king and queen wore the fattening ceremony well. While the coronation was being solemnized messages of congratulation poured in from all over the world.

The state carriage in which King George proceeded to the coronation had carried five of his predecessors to the abbey on a similar occasion. It was built 150 years ago, in 1761, for King George III, and its body, which weighs over four tons, is of fine oak, with allegorical paintings by Chiswick on the panels. Its initial cost was $35,000. George IV, William IV, Victoria and Edward VII, also rode in it to their coronations. It was drawn by eight of the celebrated cream horses from the royal stables, and a groom in state livery walked at each horse's head. The harness, which is covered with red morocco leather, with gold-plated metal fittings, was the same as was used at Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee and at Edward VII's coronation in 1902.

The king wore his crimson robes during the impressive ceremony of the reconsecration. For the ceremony of the anointing the crimson robes and cap of state were removed, and he sat in the historic coronation chair. He wore an undergarment of cloth of gold embroidered with palm branches and the national emblems of England, Ireland and Scotland. When he had been anointed on the crown of the head, on the breast and on the palms of both hands, he was robed in amice, stole and royal dalmatic—ecclesiastical vestments transformed into magnificent robes of cloth of gold, described in the coronation ritual as "the ecclesiastical stola and the super-tunica, or close robe of cloth of gold, together with a girdle of the same." When the spurs had been presented and the king had been girt with a sword he was invested with the imperial mantle of cloth of gold and the armillae, or bracelets of gold, edged with pearls and ornamented with harps, roses and fleur-de-lis. In these handsome vestments he was crowned and enthroned.

How Queen Was Dressed.
The queen looked exquisite in her coronation dress of deep ivory tulle and satin cut in princess style. The embroidery was of gold thread of varying tints, giving a delicate light and shade. A rose, shamrock and thistle in the form of a tree tapered toward the waist and widened at the corseage. Around the bottom of the gown were lotus leaves on a surface of water, emblematic of India and the seas of empire. In front of the gown was the star of India enveloped by the rose, shamrock and thistle design. The queen's train was six yards long and one and a half yards wide, fastened at the shoulders with gold cord. The train was of royal purple velvet lined with ermine, with deep blue overturning forming the hem. On the inner side of the train was embroidered a chain of oak leaves and acorns with medallions of rose, shamrock and thistle at frequent intervals.

This evening their majesties will entertain a small dinner party at Buckinghams palace. Tomorrow evening Sir Edward Grey will give a dinner in honor of the king and queen. On Saturday the royal review at Portsmouth will take place. The royal party will leave London in the morning and the king and queen will sleep on board the royal yacht.

Mrs. John Hay Hammond, wife of the American representative to the coronation, wore at the ceremony a magnificent robe. It was made in Paris of the famous Moscow brocade, which is a peacock blue robe on a backing of gold. The color changes to the palest silver and all over turquoise. The robe is made princess style and draped about the figure. It has trimmings of diamonds, embroidered on blue tulle. She wore a necklace of diamonds and emeralds, and a tatra and sash of the same gems. Mrs. Hammond carried a white ostrich plume fan, an exact counterpart of the one presented to the queen by South Africa.

According to the regulations of the United States, John Hay Hammond, special envoy, was attired in the conventional black evening suit, with white tie and opera hat.

J. Pierpont Morgan and Charles P. Taft were the only unofficial Americans present at the coronation service.

Catarrh Cannot be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrh, and that is by constitutional remedies. Catarrh is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; and cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrh (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.
